EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

This is the Vale of Glamorgan Councils first Empty Homes Strategy. This document sets out the Councils plans to bring empty homes back into use over the next five years. It outlines a coordinated, proactive approach to tackling empty homes in partnership with relevant council departments and stakeholders.

Empty homes represent a wasted resource and a lost opportunity. The Vale of Glamorgan has a significant need for additional market and affordable housing; the councils Local Housing Market Assessment Update 2010 calculates a need for an additional of 915<sup>1</sup> affordable homes year and yet there are 739 empty homes across the county that could be brought back into use.

Empty homes pose problems for the council, the owner, neighbours, the emergency services and the environment. They are often a blemish on an area and can be subject to vandalism and unsightly graffiti. The council receives service requests and complaints about these properties and has to deal with pests, dilapidation, damage to neighbouring properties and hazards to the public.

The process of dealing with empty homes was reviewed prior to the development of the Local Housing Strategy (2007-12) in 2006; in conclusion, the approach was deemed insufficient mainly because the service was reactive, not proactive, and because there was no specific budget allocated for dealing with empty homes<sup>2</sup>. It concluded that a review of the approach to empty homes was needed and that a more effective and strategic approach should be developed within the current resource constraints.

Through this strategy the council will target problematic empty homes that are inactive in the housing market; those which are unlikely to return to use without intervention from the council and those which are the subject of valid complaints from the public, partners and councillors.

The aims of this strategy are to:

- monitor empty homes,
- provide advice, assistance and guidance to landlords and property owners,
- reduce the negative effect of empty homes on our communities,
- reduce the number of empty homes, return empty homes to use and
- promote the empty homes initiative.

The process for dealing with empty homes has been developed in partnership by the councils Environmental Health, Private Sector Housing, Public Sector Housing, Council Tax, Planning and Legal departments and Registered Social Landlords.

1. INTRODUCTION

1.0 INTRODUCTION

This is the Vale of Glamorgan Councils first Empty Homes Strategy. This document sets out the Councils plans to bring empty homes back into use over the next five years. It outlines the Councils coordinated, proactive approach to tackling empty homes with our partners and stakeholders.

Tackling empty homes and bringing them back into use will impact positively on Vale residents, including people in housing need and the wider community for whom empty homes often cause problems.

1.1 HOUSING NEED IN THE VALE

There is an acute shortage of housing both locally and nationally; migration of people into the Vale, homelessness and affordability issues have driven up the demand for housing in recent years. The Council works in partnership with house builders and registered social landlords to increase the supply of both market and affordable housing; however demand continues to outstrip supply, especially for affordable housing<sup>3</sup>.

The Vale of Glamorgan has 55'319<sup>4</sup> homes, of which:

- 77.9% are owner occupied,
- 12.9% are social rented and
- 7.7% private rented
- (1.6% Other)<sup>5</sup>.

There is significant need for additional housing in the Vale; the Council's Local Housing Market Assessment (2008) identifies the annual need for 5517<sup>6</sup> additional dwellings of all tenures across the County.

Following the steps of the needs assessment model specified by the Welsh Assembly Government; the Local Housing Market Assessment Guide, results in an annual net shortfall of affordable housing (defined in TAN2) of 915<sup>7</sup> dwellings per year. This represents a notable increase from the equivalent figure of 652 calculated in the 2007 Local Housing Market Assessment.

The Assessment identifies that:

- 3'897<sup>8</sup> households are living in unsuitable housing of which 2'129<sup>8</sup> do not have an 'in-situ' solution and therefore require a move to alternative accommodation.

<sup>3</sup> Affordable housing includes the provision of social and intermediate rented and LCHO or 'Homebuy' shared equity properties.

- During the last quarter (Jan – March) of 2009 – 2010 the Council had a statutory duty to home 97<sup>9</sup> homeless families (i.e. households who were eligible, unintentionally homeless and in priority need; the Council must find them a home by law).

In addition:

- The Councils Homes4U waiting list for social rented properties (Council and RSL) has 1866<sup>10</sup> individuals and families registered in housing need.
- The Councils Accessible Homes Register incorporates 146<sup>11</sup> individuals on the Homes4U waiting list with a 'gold' status, i.e. those who need to move to a more appropriate or adapted property, and an additional 377 Council tenants whose existing property is not suitable to be adapted and therefore need to more appropriate / adapted property (identified via the 'Incentive to Move' scheme).

1.2 THE PROBLEMS ASSOCIATED WITH EMPTY HOMES

Empty homes represent a wasted resource and lost opportunity. Despite the significant housing need, there are significant numbers of empty homes across the county which could be brought back into use and provide a home to an individual or family in need.

Commercial properties also provide a missed opportunity; residential properties above commercial and retail premises are particularly underused and offer an opportunity that could be exploited to improve the availability of housing, especially for single persons.

Both unused residential and commercial properties are difficult to bring back into use and although empty homes are not the answer to the housing need in the Vale, there are real opportunities to use these homes to increase the supply of housing and offer greater choice to households in need.

Empty homes pose problems for the council, the owner, neighbours and members of the public, the emergency services and the environment:

<sup>11</sup> Number of people registered with 'Gold' Homes4U status and the 'Incentive to Move' scheme (08.07.2010)

Council - The council has to deal with complaints about empty homes from local people who rightly object to unsightly disused properties. There are implications for the Councils Environmental Health (Housing) team that have to use staff time and resources to intervene to deal with pests, dilapidation, damage to neighbouring properties and other issues:

EMPTY RESIDENTIAL PROPERTY

Property Owner - The property owner has to bear the cost of leaving the property empty, which when compared to taking responsibility for the property may actually costs the owner more, see Figure 1.

Properties deteriorate at a quicker rate when left empty, meaning a temporarily empty property can quickly become an unsightly burden the owner is reluctant to tackle.

<sup>14</sup> www.everyhomecounts.info/owning/cost accessed 02.12.2010

Neighbours - The Neighbours and those people living nearby find empty properties unsightly; deteriorating empty homes can be a real blight on a street or area. They undermine the communities' confidence in the area; they attract crime, vandalism and anti social behaviour. For neighbouring properties they can cause damp and structural problems. Empty properties may also be vandalised and broken into, resulting in problems for neighbouring properties. Empty properties deter investment and adjoining homes can be devalued by up to 18%<sup>15</sup>.

EMPTY RESIDENTIAL PROPERTY

Environment - There is an environmental impact of leaving homes empty: It has been estimated that it would take the equivalent of 12 football pitches of land to build 800 homes. This could be greenfield sites of open land that local people value. It would be much more efficient and sustainable to make best use of the homes that we already have.

The report 'New Tricks with Old Bricks – how reusing old buildings can cut carbon emissions'<sup>16</sup> looked at how much of the carbon emitted over a building's lifetime is produced during its initial construction: "Initial construction accounts for nearly three times as much of the building's lifetime emissions as has been generally supposed (28% rather than 10%) Moreover, new construction emitted more than four-and-a-half times as much CO<sub>2</sub> per square metre (475 kgCO<sub>2</sub>/m<sup>2</sup>) as comprehensive refurbishment of an existing home (104 kgCO<sub>2</sub>/m<sup>2</sup>). This highlights the 'development peak' in emissions from construction"<sup>17</sup>. The research results suggest that the advantages of older, existing housing are being seriously overlooked in the fight against climate change.

Emergency Services and Safer Vale Partnership - The emergency services, the police and fire service deal with complaints and call outs to empty homes, wasting the finite time and money of these vital services.

Properties with smashed and open windows and doors are easy to access by people; they can become targets for anti social and criminal activity.

Calls to the Safer Vale Partnership regarding empty homes include<sup>18</sup>:

- People breaking into property
- Overgrown gardens
- Mice infestation
- Theft`
- Blocked drains
- Rubbish

EMPTY RESIDENTIAL PROPERTY

1.3 WHY DO PROPERTIES BECOME EMPTY?

Properties can become empty for a number of reasons, including but not limited to the following examples:

- A property that is unsuitable to rent or sell due to its physical state and that would require renovation.
- A property that is difficult to rent or sell due to location; poor facilities, infrastructure etc.
- When the property has been abandoned by the owner and the owner is untraceable.
- Where there is an issue of unresolved ownership, often as a result of the previous owners' death. Resolving ownership can be a lengthy legal process, during which time the property may remain empty.
- Property holding, when a property is left empty due to speculative investment, through acquiring a property through inheritance or where partners co-habit leaving the second property empty. Or where the property is adjoined to a business and the owner does not wish to let or sell it.
- Due to an ageing population, older property owners may move into alternative older persons accommodation for care or support needs. They may choose not to sell the property which result in it remaining empty for the short or long term.

EMPTY RESIDENTIAL PROPERTY

1.4 WHICH PROPERTIES WILL THE STRATEGY TACKLE?

Through this strategy the council will target problematic empty homes that are:

- Inactive in the housing market.
- Unlikely to return to use without intervention from the council
- The subject of valid complaints from the public, partners and councillors

The council may also intervene in circumstances whereby providing assistance and advice to owners that would contribute to the council meeting its corporate and strategic objectives.

The strategy will not cover short term empty properties, such as:

- Transitional vacancies, due to the property being advertised for sale or rent
- Properties undergoing renovation prior to sale or rent
- Infrequently used properties such as holiday or second homes
- Student accommodation

This strategy sets out the role of the council and its partners will play in ensuring that where possible long term empty properties are brought back into use, together with the resources, powers and processes the council can use to achieve this.

EMPTY RESIDENTIAL PROPERTY

2. BACKGROUND

2.0 BACKGROUND

The council have extensive powers to intervene where they consider there to be unsafe or unacceptable housing conditions. The powers were significantly changed by the implementation of the Housing Act 2004 in July 2006, but are also contained in the Housing Act 1985 (as amended), the Housing Act 1996 and the Housing Grants, Construction and Regeneration Act 1996 (as amended).

These interventions include:

- Enforcement activity, for example;
  - Serving improvement or prohibition notices on owners
  - Demolition Orders
  - Management Orders
- Slum clearance
- Compulsory Purchase Orders (CPO)
- Empty Dwelling Management Orders (EDMO)
- Renewal areas
- Licensing of House in Multiple Occupation (HMO)
- Selective licensing of the private rented housing

Part 1 of the Housing Act 2004 replaced the existing housing fitness standard with the evidence based Housing Health and Safety Rating System (HHSRS) as a more effective basis for targeting enforcement against housing conditions that affect the health and safety of residents.

The new enforcement framework and options available to local authorities apply to all types of dwellings including vacant properties.

The courses of action available to the authority where they have either a duty or a power to act will be:

- to serve an Improvement Notice, where works are required to address or reduce a hazard
- to make a Prohibition Order, which closes the whole or part of a dwelling or restricts the number of permitted occupants
- to suspend these types of action, for example where the current occupant is not identified as vulnerable to the hazard in question
- to serve a Hazard Awareness Notice
- to make a Demolition Order – available for Category 1 hazards only (unless subject to Order)
- To declare a Clearance Area - available for Category 1 hazards only.

The Act retains the powers available to authorities to act in default and prosecute for lack of compliance with the addition of provisions to carry out emergency remedial works or prohibit occupation. The council adopted an Enforcement Policy based on the Cabinet Office's Enforcement Concordat in 2001. This policy sets out to ensure the Council undertakes its enforcement role in a fair, open and transparent manner.

2.1 STRATEGIC DIRECTION

Community Strategy (2010-2020) - The councils priorities for action are identified and informed by the Community Strategy (2010-2020) which considers how the Vale should look in the future. It seeks to ensure that the aims and targets of all the organisations active in the Vale are geared towards providing a focused and consistent quality of services to residents, visitors and businesses.

The Community Strategy (2010-2020) states that: "Our vision for the Vale is a place that is: safe, clean and attractive, where individuals and communities have sustainable opportunities to improve their health, learning, skills, prosperity and well-being, and where there is a strong sense of community in which local groups and individuals have the capacity and incentive to make an effective contribution to the future sustainability of the area"<sup>19</sup>

The strategy also identifies that although "the Vale of Glamorgan is comparatively wealthy and many of its residents enjoy a high standard of living in a good quality environment, there are also areas within the Vale which suffer from significant economic, environmental and social difficulties such as high unemployment, sub-standard housing, low educational achievement, poor health and high levels of crime"<sup>19</sup>.

Therefore all strategies, policies and plans developed by the Council should contribute to achieving the overall strategic objectives above.

The Councils housing function is located in the Legal, Public Protection and Housing department; the department's role in tackling sub-standard housing is addressed in the following documents:

1. Private Sector Housing Renewal Policy 2011-13
2. Local Housing Strategy 2007- 2012

Private Sector Housing Renewal Policy 2011-13 - This policy encouraged the co-operation of individuals in keeping their homes in good repair. It also recognised that circumstances exist where financial assistance is required, particularly for those on low incomes.

The Private Sector Housing Policy compliments this strategy and within Policy Statement 5 states that enforcement action within the private sector will include action against empty properties to include "the appropriate use of interventions and incentives to bring the properties back into use"<sup>20</sup>.

In addition to the enforcement commitment, the policy includes a Regeneration Assistance which is available to owners of vacant property within the Castleland Renewal Area. This form of assistance provides partial funding to an owner to help them undertake work to make a property habitable for themselves or to rent.

Similar assistance was available for empty homes in the Penarth Central Renewal Area but was not taken up by owners because of concerns about the grant conditions that would be imposed. However, with a more proactive approach to dealing with empty properties through this strategy it is envisaged this assistance will have a greater take up rate in Castleland Renewal Area

Local Housing Strategy 2007-12 - This strategy states that the council aims to:

- Develop good quality, affordable and appropriate accommodation to meet identified housing need,
- ensure existing housing is maintained and fit for purpose and neighbourhoods benefit from renewal schemes,
- eradicate homelessness and ensure the public have accessible, high quality advice and information on housing matters,
- develop appropriate housing and support solutions to meet specific needs within the community and
- to work in partnership to make the Vale a safe and healthy place for residents of all ages<sup>21</sup>

The strategy also addresses empty homes specifically; in 2007 there were 816 properties identified as long term vacant<sup>22</sup>. It was recognised that empty properties were a wasted resource and often had a detrimental impact on the neighbourhoods in which they were located<sup>23</sup> and therefore needed to be addressed strategically.

Consultation, as part of the Local Housing Strategy development in 2007 also identified empty homes as a concern for the council's strategic partners and stakeholders: "Concern was expressed about the high levels of vacant homes in the study area. The authorities (Vale of Glamorgan Council and Cardiff City Council) are taking steps to address this issue, but highlighted problems in trying to ensure that for example empty apartments are used for affordable housing purposes. Many investors are purchasing properties with no intentions of letting as the increase in property prices is providing the investment return without the need to rent the property out"<sup>24</sup>

2.2 WHO DEALS WITH EMPTY PROPERTIES?

The responsibility for enforcement in relation to empty properties traditionally falls within the service objectives of the Public Protection Service within the Legal, Public Protection and Housing directorate. The department service plans are an important part of the corporate planning process, they explain the actions that each service area will undertake in order to help realise the council's corporate aims and objectives (see Figure 2), Empty homes and private rented sector landlords are primarily dealt with by the councils Environmental Health (Housing) Enforcement Team in partnership with the housing department.

Figure 2: Service Plan and Links to the Corporate Objectives:

2.3 SERVICES FOR LANDLORDS AND PROPERTY OWNERS

The services and support currently available to private sector landlords and property owners include:

Advice and Support - Advice and support is offered to landlords through the Private Sector Landlords Forum and information and advice available on the council's website. The forum brings together council officers, landlords and partner agencies to discuss issues and problems, emerging legislation and its application in the Vale. It provides an informal opportunity for landlords to speak to council officers and gain advice and sign posting.

It is acknowledged that this is an area where improvement can be made; there needs to be more information made available to landlords, on the council's website, leaflets and face-to-face advice.

Can Do Lettings – CanDo Lettings was established in the Vale in 2011; it is a social lettings agency, run as a social enterprise with a team of dedicated full time staff. The council, in partnership with CanDo Lettings values the role that private sector landlords play in meeting the housing needs of local people. But also recognises that some landlords are reluctant to take people on low incomes or housing benefit. This makes it difficult for people on low incomes to access suitable and affordable accommodation. CanDo Lettings was established by Cadwyn Housing Association (HA) who have over 30 years experience of successfully managing homes<sup>25</sup>.

Successfully managing a rented property can be very demanding. CanDo are looking for all types of properties and offer a hassle free full management and repairs reporting service at competitive prices.

- High standard of management
- No worries about rent arrears – CanDo handle it
- Charges consist of initial setup fee plus commission
- Fees and Commission deducted monthly from rents
- Routine repairs up to the value of £200 per annum covered within the charges

Rent - Landlords must be prepared to accept Housing Benefit payments to cover the rent. HB will be paid directly to CanDo Lettings and forwarded to the Landlord via BACS on a monthly basis.

Tenancy Agreement – The tenancy agreement will be between CanDo Lettings and the tenant.

Bonds - CanDo will provide tenants with bond assistance and help them in obtaining a Bond Certificate; which acts in the same way as a cash deposit and can be claimed against for rent arrears and damages.

Inventory - CanDo Lettings will inspect the property before the tenancy commences and provide a full inventory. A closing inspection, checking the property against the original inventory and handling the disposal of the Bond is also included in the service.

Landlord Accreditation Wales - The councils Environmental Health (Housing) Enforcement Team collaborated with the Welsh Assembly Government and other local authorities in Wales to develop the all Wales Accredited Landlord Training scheme. The scheme ensures that landlords rental properties run smoothly and within the confines of the law. It shows a commitment to potential tenants to provide good quality, well managed accommodation.

Property Guardian Schemes - Property Guardian Schemes have been in operation in mainland Europe for many years. In the UK, property guardian schemes have started to be recognized as a useful tool to address empty properties and there has been a noticeable increase in their popularity due to the recession. The schemes are based on the principle of 'guarding' vacant properties, that range from large houses to former office blocks. The scheme benefits both the building owner and the guardian;

- the guardian gets a property to live in, often a interesting or historic building, for a low rent. There are some downsides; the facilities are often basic, the arrangement is only offered on a temporary basis and there is no security of tenure.
- the property owner gets the assurance that their building is being occupied which is likely to deter crime and potential squatters. Using a property guardian is also much cheaper than hiring a 24/7 security guard or installing CCTV.

Financial Assistance

Problem Vacant Property Grants - Under the existing Housing Renewal Policy financial assistance is available in the Castleland Renewal Area for refurbishment and/or conversion to bring empty property back into use. The properties eligible will be those that have a detrimental affect on a street or neighbourhood or where there has been enforcement activity in relation to matters such as fly-tipping, forced entry or nuisance to adjoining properties.

These grants will be limited to a maximum of £15,000 per single dwelling or £8,000 per unit of accommodation in multiple occupied properties. Grant conditions also require the property to be occupied for the first 5 years on completion of the work or the grant is repayable. In addition, on sale of the property, regardless of time, the grant is repayable. See Appendix 2 for qualifying criteria and conditions.

In general, empty homes are only dealt with if there is a complaint is received; following a complaint, the Environmental Health (Housing) Team would undertake work to address the nature of the complaint and then continue to monitor the properties subject to enforcement under the Housing Act 2004, through 6-monthly visits.

Lower Rate of VAT<sup>26</sup> – There are now lower VAT rates for developing empty properties; 5% as opposed to 20%, if the property has been empty for over two years, is the conversion of a non-residential building to residential or is providing more or less units. The VAT rate is 0% if empty for over ten years and is for sale after completion.

Flat Conversion Allowance<sup>27</sup> - The Flat conversion allowance (FCA), from HM Revenue and Customs, encourages the conversion of empty or underused space above shops and other commercial premises to residential use. The qualifying criteria include the following:

- The flats created must not be high value.
- The flats must be available for short-term letting in order to qualify for FCA.
- The property in which the flats are situated must have been built before 1980.
- The property must not have more than 4 storeys above the ground floor.
- It must appear that, when the property was constructed, the floors above the ground floor were intended for residential use.
- These upper floors must have been either unoccupied, or used only for storage, for at least one year before the conversion work starts.

The scheme is very generous in that the allowance is 100% of the qualifying expenditure. Qualifying expenditure is capital expenditure incurred in connection with the conversion of a qualifying building.

2.4 REVIEW OF THE CURRENT ARRANGEMENTS FOR DEALING WITH EMPTY HOMES

The process of dealing with empty homes was reviewed prior to the development of the Local Housing Strategy (2007-12) in 2006; in conclusion, the approach was deemed insufficient for the following reasons:

- the service was reactive not proactive,
- the service provided was in response to complaints received and
- there was no specific budget allocated for dealing with empty homes<sup>28</sup>

It was concluded that a review of the approach to empty homes was needed and that a more effective and strategic approach should be developed within the current resource constraints. The scope of the review was to include:

- the need for a revised Empty Homes Strategy,
- new procedural guidance on dealing with empty homes and
- guidance on the use and application of Empty Dwelling Management Orders<sup>28</sup>

2.5 PERFORMANCE AND OUTCOMES

National Performance Indicators - The Councils performance in relation to empty homes is monitored via the following national performance indicators: PSR/004 – Vacant Dwellings Returned to Occupation; “the percentage of private sector dwellings that had been vacant for more than 6 months at 1st April that were returned to occupation during the year through direct action by the local authority”. The Councils performance in relation to this PI is shown below<sup>29</sup>:

	06/07	07/08	08/09	09/10	10/11
A. The percentage of private sector dwellings that had been vacant for more than 6 months at 1 April that were returned to occupation during the year through direct action by the local authority	0.43%	0.37%	2.05%	0.38%	0.67%
B. The number of private sector dwellings that had been vacant for more than 6 months at 1 April which were returned to occupation during the year through direct action by the local authority	3	3	15	3	5
C. The total number of private sector dwellings that had been vacant for more than 6 months at 1 April	697	816	732	790	749

The PI is also collected by the Data Unit Wales for all Welsh local authorities. This enables the Vale of Glamorgan Council to compare itself to other council areas and Wales as a whole.

Outcome Agreement - In addition to the performance indicator, the council has an agreed an ‘outcome agreement’ with the Welsh Assembly Government. Outcome agreements address particular strategic themes, objectives and improvement targets, including a number in relation to empty homes.

Under the councils strategic theme of ‘communities are vibrant and safe, with access to good housing and sustainable transport’ there is an objective to improve the quality of the existing housing stock. The specific actions are to:

1. Publish the multi-agency Empty Homes Strategy
2. Bring properties back into residential use with RSLs by March 2012

Targets have been set for the number of empty homes to be brought back into use have been set and agreed by the council for the next 3 years.

There is clearly room for improvement in this area of the councils performance. This will require a joined-up approach between a number of departments and directorates and a clear approach to tackling empty homes and their owners.

<sup>29</sup> PI figure of 749 empty homes is at 01.04.2011

3. CURRENT ISSUES

3.0 STRATEGIC CONTEXT

There is no statutory duty for councils in Wales to produce empty homes strategies, however councils are under increasing pressure to tackle issues relating to empty properties and the increasing demand for housing only serves to shine a light on the wasted resource that empty homes present. Tackling the problem of empty homes requires a strategic, joined up approach. Councils are receiving clear strategic direction to develop their approach to empty homes:

In 1992 the Empty Homes Agency, an independent campaigning organisation, was created to: “encourage local authorities not only to deal with their own empty properties but also to adopt measures to bring privately owned empty properties back into use as part of their strategic housing approach”<sup>30</sup>. The EHA continues to highlight the waste of empty homes and works to promote sustainable solutions for bringing homes back into use.

In 2003 the Welsh Assembly Government published ‘Empty Homes: A Strategic Approach’ which approximated that in 2001 10’000 homes in Wales were unoccupied and dilapidated. In response, the Welsh Assembly Government and the National Assembly for Wales introduced a series of measures aimed at encouraging the reuse of empty homes. However, the publication also recognised that: “despite these measures, there remains concern about the impact of empty homes on local communities and the waste they entail in terms of housing supply. It is therefore important from a social justice standpoint that local authorities adopt a strategic approach using a range of powers to tackle this issue”<sup>31</sup>

Following a pilot programme of local authority compulsory leasing schemes sponsored by the UK government in 2002, the Housing Act 2004 gave councils the power to obtain Management Orders on both occupied and empty homes.

In 2010 the Welsh Assembly’s housing strategy ‘Improving Lives and Communities – Homes in Wales’ outlined the substantial challenges ahead: “The demand for housing continues to outstrip supply, which needs to be met by new houses and by bringing back into use empty properties”. It highlights the importance of bringing empty homes back into housing supply: “Empty homes continue to be a problem in some communities. Some are empty only for short periods, perhaps waiting for repair or for sale. But some are empty for much longer periods. They can be a magnet for anti-social behaviour, vandalism and crime. More importantly, an empty home is one less home for someone who needs it”<sup>32</sup>

The strategy also strengthens the Welsh Assembly’s intention to encourage councils to tackle empty homes; “Building on good practice guidance issued by the Welsh Assembly Government, demonstration projects will be established to help local organisations to bring empty homes back into use”<sup>32</sup>.

The Welsh Local Government Association (WLGA) has drawn attention to the fact that Welsh councils are operating in times of “well documented severe economic and political turbulence”, stating that “for local government in Wales these are demanding and difficult times”<sup>33</sup>. Therefore councils need to work smarter; strategically and in partnership. This is reinforced by the Welsh Assembly, who state that the capacity of local government to achieve the objectives of the national housing strategy (‘Improving Lives and Communities – Homes in Wales’ 2010) and of the Essex Review of Affordable Housing (2008) depends upon “the ability of local government and other stakeholders to grasp this opportunity and work strategically and innovatively . . . . to make a real impact on housing in Wales”<sup>33</sup>.

The WLGA want the Welsh Assembly to support councils to do this, they encourage the Welsh Assembly to: “Build on the success of existing Housing Renewal Areas by developing and supporting innovative approaches to the renewal of existing privately owned homes and to bring more empty homes back into use”<sup>33</sup>.

On the run up to the Welsh Assembly Government elections in 2011 the housing election promises of the four main political parties in Wales highlighted the importance of housing in Wales. One issue which received a degree of party consensus was the need to bring empty homes back into use. The Chartered Institute of Housing said this was strongly welcomed by the sector as a policy priority. The CIH would also like to see the creation of a national sustainable empty property fund to help bring empty homes back into use<sup>34</sup>.

3.1 EMPTY HOMES IN WALES

The scale of the problem in Wales is considerable; in 2001 there were 51'000 vacant dwellings which equates to 4% of the total housing supply. In England 3.4% and in Scotland 3.8% of housing stock was vacant, making the problem in Wales the highest in the UK at the time<sup>35</sup>.

More recently, on 1st April 2009, nearly 22,000 homes in Wales had been empty for over 6 months. Of these, more than nine out of ten were private sector dwellings<sup>36</sup>.

These statistics, along with policy developments have strengthened the need for the Vale of Glamorgan Council to have a strategy and action plan in place to tackle the empty homes issue.

4.2 RENEWAL AND REGENERATION

Barry Regeneration Area: The Welsh Assembly Government has created seven Regeneration Areas, one of which is Barry; Barry is a town of over 47,000 people and has many strengths and opportunities. These include a scenic coastal setting, an extensive dockland area situated between the town centre and its seaside resort and beaches, a railway running through the heart of the town, close proximity to the capital city in the east and Wales' only International Airport to the west.

In the past few years, the town has undergone a number of regeneration projects. The Barry Regeneration Area funding will be used to fully capitalise on the towns strengths and to raise its status within the South East Wales economy. In order to do this the council need to overcome a number of challenges, including:

- Greatest concentration of socio-economic need in the Vale
- Demise of traditional shopping areas due to out of town developments
- General poor image – deters personal and corporate investment

Castleland (Barry) Renewal Area: The Castleland area of Barry was officially declared a Renewal Area in April 2010 and will last for 12 years. The aims of a Renewal Area are to reverse the decline of the area by improving housing, improving general amenities and their local environment, developing partnerships, increasing community and market confidence and maximising external investment in to the area.

Year two commencing April 2011 will see the start of work on some of the 1,200 houses in the area. Measures will include works to improve the fronts of houses to restore and enhance the street scene and some internal works to tackle issues such as energy efficiency and Health and Safety. As well as Housing schemes there will also be works to the town centre and community and environmental schemes.

BEFORE AND AFTER THE FACE-LIFTING SCHEME IN THE PREVIOUS RENEWAL AREA IN PENARTH

The Empty Homes Strategy will contribute to the aims and objectives of the regeneration and renewal areas by prioritising empty homes in Barry and working in partnership with the councils Regeneration and Planning departments to tackle empty commercial and residential properties on the Holton Rd shopping area.

Council tax data<sup>39</sup> indicates that there are at 43 residential properties that are currently empty within the Castleland Renewal Area. Of these 40% are located in the main shopping area on Holton Road and consist mainly of self contained units situated above commercial premises.

The figures show that 70% of properties in the Castleland area recorded with council tax as being vacant have been empty since 2006. 21% of properties in this area have been empty since 2001 and 7% have been vacant for a period of more than 10 years. Information relating to the remaining 2% of empty properties within the Castleland Renewal area is not held by the Local Authority.

5. DEALING WITH THE PROBLEM

5.0 AIMS AND OBJECTIVES

Aim 1: Monitor empty homes - The Council will develop a corporate system to keep detailed records of every empty home in the Vale of Glamorgan and ensure that it is regularly updated to provide accurate information. We will also make sure we keep records of empty homes which are brought back into use.

We will do the following:

- Develop and maintain a database of empty properties. Update the database with up to date information from the Council Tax database every 12 months.
- Develop and implement a system to prioritise empty properties to be addressed, using criteria such as level of risk / hazard, physical condition and / or disrepair, geographical location and using the councils strategic objectives.
- Monitor the progress and outcome of voluntary measures, statutory notices and enforcement action.
- Develop and agree inter department protocols and procedures for information sharing and monitoring of empty homes

Aim 2: Provide advice, assistance and guidance to landlords and property owners - The council will improve the advice, assistance and guidance provided to landlords and property owners. We will develop services to assist landlords and property owners return empty properties to use and promote the provision of affordable, good quality and well managed accommodation through the private rented sector.

We will do the following:

- To offer advice, assistance and support to the owners of empty homes to develop and improve properties with the intention of making them part of the available housing supply.
- Carry out targeted publicity campaigns to make property owners aware of the support and assistance available.
- Offer a range of financial assistance to improve the empty property for reoccupation:
  - be able to sign post property owners to independent financial assistance and advice,
  - develop options for the Council to assist financial, either through grants or loans as detailed in the Housing Renewal Policy and
  - publicise the options for assistance through renewal and regeneration areas.
- Publish information in relation to:
  - the potential pitfalls of purchasing property which is in poor repair or uninhabitable,
  - the potential cost of leaving a property empty,
  - how to access assistance to sell or let the property and
  - how to access independent financial advice, technical support such as architects or planning advisors and trades people such as builders.

Aim 3: Reduce the negative effect of empty homes on our communities - The Housing and Environmental Health (Housing) teams will liaise with its partners and stakeholders, including the councils Council Tax, Planning and Legal departments, Registered Social Landlords and the Safer Vale Partnership. We will operate a proactive and reactive service to identify and address empty properties, identify and address the risks and hazards associated with empty properties and make full use of the councils enforcement role.

We will do the following:

- Improve the physical condition and appearance of the empty properties in the poorest state of repair.
- Reduces the risks and hazards associated with empty properties.
- Offer advice, assistance and support to members of the public who are experiencing problems living in the vicinity of an empty property.

Aim 4: Reduce the number of empty homes and Return empty homes to use - The council will create a range of options to encourage landlords and owners to return empty properties to use. We will also develop and implement a firm enforcement approach for owners who do not cooperate, whose engagement is not forthcoming, whose improvement is not evidenced or where the owner cannot be traced.

We will do the following:

- Support the councils regeneration programme/s, including ensuring the economic stability of rural areas and the economic development of the Vales urban centres.
- Support and contribute to the creation of additional market and affordable housing.
- Formalise joint working arrangements between council directorates, departments and teams.
- Develop an approach to dealing with empty properties which follows a clear step-by-step process where all partners are clear on and committed to their individual responsibilities and roles.
- For those empty properties where all reasonable voluntary action has failed, develop and implement a firm enforcement approach for owners who do not cooperate, whose engagement is not forthcoming, whose improvement is not evidenced or where the owner cannot be traced.
- Develop procedures for enforcement action not currently undertaken; EDMOs and CPOs.

Aim 5: Promote the empty homes initiative - The Housing and Environmental Health (Housing) teams will raise council and public awareness of the Empty Homes Strategy and the councils powers to tackle empty homes. We will promote and publicise successful projects and use them as a springboard to encourage the public to report empty properties in the Vale of Glamorgan.

We will do the following:

- Raise awareness of the issues surrounding empty homes to the public, partners and corporately.
- Obtain corporate and inter-department agreement on implementation of Strategy
- Report progress against the action plan to the relevant Scrutiny Committee every 12 months.

5.1 THE PROCESS FOR DEALING WITH EMPTY PROPERTIES

Below is an outline of the steps that will be taken to deal with empty properties. A flowchart of the process is provided in Appendix 3:

- 1. Identifying empty properties and adding them to the database – An empty property can be identified by a council officer, partner agency (Police, Safer Vale etc), councillor, neighbour, local resident or the owner themselves. The report will be checked against the database and Council Tax records.

The Environmental Health (Housing) team will respond to enquiries and complaints made by members of the public, councillors and other organisations in relation to empty properties within the Vale of Glamorgan. At this stage officers will obtain background information available from all relevant departments on the council on the property and ownership details if possible.

- 2. Making contact with the property owner/s – Attempts will be made to identify the owner of the empty property, should this be successful or the owner be known already then an initial letter and empty homes survey will be sent to them.

Proactive investigations will be carried out by officers of the Environmental Health (Housing) team to target long term empty properties. Details of the identity of these properties and ownership will be supplied by Council Tax.

In cases where the property owner cannot be traced the council has a number of options as to how they will try to identify the owner, these are included in Appendix 4.

- 3. Inspection and scoring of the property – Properties will be surveyed externally using a standard risk assessment form that takes into consideration factors such as the length of time the property has been vacant, the location of the property and its condition and impact on the surrounding area. Taking into consideration the level of risk associated with these factors, a score will be generated for each property. This score will reflect the overall effect that the property is having on nearby residents, members of the public and the community as a whole. The Environmental Health (Housing) Team will target their resources to bringing those properties with the highest score back into use. Emphasis will also be placed on bringing those properties located within the Castleland Renewal Area back into use. The number of properties to be targeted will be influenced by the National Performance Indicators and the resources available within the team. The empty property risk assessment form is contained within Appendix 5.

- 4. Working with willing owners – If the owner contacts the council or the survey is returned then the council will proactively look to address the issue through advice, support and assistance.

In the first instance the council will aim to work closely with empty property owners encouraging and supporting them. It will often be necessary to trace the owner of the property and there are a number of options available to officers to achieve this. Appendix 6 contains a list of options and Appendix 7 contains a summary of enforcement powers.

Owners will be sent a series of letters detailing the work of the council in relation to empty properties. The letters will highlight the options available for bringing the property back into use. It is hoped that this type of intervention will gain the cooperation of the owner so that the property can successfully be brought back into use.

- 5. Dealing with unwilling owners – If the owner fails to contact the council or return the survey then the level of involvement pursued by the council will depend on the external inspection score.

The initial involvement will follow the steps as above, beginning with a series of letters requesting the property owner contact and cooperate with the council.

- 6. Options appraisal – Evidence will be gathered in cases where the owner is unwilling to cooperate and the external inspection score is sufficient, e.g. enforcement history, land charges, unpaid debts, complaints etc.

- 7. Enforcement – Proactive enforcement will be pursued when all reasonable means of persuasion to return the property to occupation have been exhausted.

5.2 ENFORCEMENT

Enforcement action is always seen as a last resort. However, where owners have refused offers of help and can give no good reason why the property should remain empty, the council will not hesitate to use enforcement action wherever necessary.

There are a range of enforcement options available to council officers to deal with minor issues arising as a result of the property being vacant, e.g. accumulations of rubbish, overgrown gardens, disrepair affecting neighbouring properties etc. The Local Authority can serve an enforcement Notice requiring the owner to undertake certain works. If the owner then fails to comply with the requirements of the Notice, the Local Authority can undertake work in default and subsequently recover all reasonable expenses incurred in doing so. Many of the statutory provisions available to the Local Authority allow for the debt to be registered as a local land charge and in some instances the debt will also accrue interest. Details of these statutory provisions can be seen in Appendix 11.

In addition to this there are several options available to the council to deal more comprehensively with problematic long term empty properties. This can involve a change in ownership of a property which will allow a new owner to do what is necessary to bring the property back into use. Details of these powers can be seen in Appendices 6 & 7.

When considering whether to take enforcement action officers will have regard to the Enforcement Concordat. A copy of the Enforcement Concordat can be found in Appendix 8. The outcome of the external survey will also be considered when determining if enforcement action is necessary.

5.3 ASSISTANCE FROM REGISTERED SOCIAL LANDLORDS

In order to effectively and efficiently deal with problem empty properties and make full use of the councils strategic and enforcement role, additional involvement will be sought from the councils partner Registered Social Landlords (RSLs).

Initial discussions have been held with the councils partner RSLs; Hafod Housing Association, Newydd Housing Association, United Welsh Housing Association and Wales and West Housing Association; and they have agreed to provide the council with assistance to implement the Empty Homes Strategy.

The RSLs will be involved in the initial discussions, along with council officers, to prioritise empty properties; this will assist the council in understanding which properties the RSLs could assist with, the financial costs involved in returning a property to use and property valuations. The RSLs will also assist with stages 6 and 7 (options appraisal and enforcement) of the process for dealing with empty homes (section 5.1).

The process for RSL involvement will be informed by the council's capacity to implement the process for dealing with empty homes. The RSL involvement will therefore be developed and formalised after the strategy has been adopted.

5.4 ROLES AND RESPONSIBILITIES

The role of each of the council teams involved in tackling empty homes and returning them to use are listed below:

Private Sector Housing / Environmental Health (Housing) – The Environmental Health (Housing) team will take responsibility for the day-to-day process of dealing with the empty homes, they will; maintain the empty property database, write and send the series of letters sent to property owners, coordinate the risk assessment of the property, contact property owners, offer assistance and identify un-willing property owners.

Public Sector Housing – Public sector housing will assist with developing website information, leaflets and advice for property owners. The Housing Strategy Team will assist in liaison between the RSLs and council partners via the Strategic Housing Forum and Overarching Housing Forum. Public Sector Housing will also provide ongoing housing need information in order to assist in prioritising empty properties to tackle.

Council Tax – The Council Tax Department have agreed to provide information on a 6 monthly basis (April and September) to Environmental Health (Housing); on the following:

- Breakdown of all properties included in the 'standard empty' category, to include; the property addresses and contact details of the owner. The list will be ordered by length of time spent empty, so those empty for 18 months and longer can be prioritised.

In addition, information on the following will be requested from Council Tax:

- Information (excluding contact information) about properties included in the 'void account' category; where the property is empty, has been on the list for 18 months or longer and the owner is unknown. Efforts will then be made by Private Sector Housing to identify the owner of the property and bring it back into use.
- Information (excluding contact information) about category E properties; where the property owner has moved into permanent residential or nursing care and the property is empty. If the property has remained empty for a significant period of time, information will be sent to the property address advising of the assistance available to bring the property back into use.

- Information (excluding contact information) on category F properties; where the property is part of an estate in probate. If the property has remained empty for a significant period of time, information will be sent to the property address advising of the assistance available to bring the property back into use.

Council Tax and Private Sector Housing will share information from the Land Registry in relation to identifying owners and Solicitors in relation to properties in probate. This will avoid duplication, minimise administration and ensure the most efficient use of resources.

Council Tax use a contractor to conduct annual visits to empty properties; there is an opportunity for this contract to be extended to include the empty property risk assessment (Appendix 5). This could be a cost effective way of adding capacity to manage the empty property process.

Legal - Legal Services can provide assistance with general advice on the appropriateness of serving a CPO, the drafting and making of serving an advertising of CPOs, the drafting of requisite statement of reasons, liaising with Welsh Government in connection with confirmation of particular CPOs and post order work including the transfer of properties the subject of CPOs to the Council. In cases where objections are received Legal Services can also advice and assist with dealing with the steps up to and including Public Inquires.

Planning - The Vale of Glamorgan Adopted Unitary Development Plan 1996 - 2011 (UDP) provides the most up to date planning policy framework for the authority. However, the Council is currently in the process of preparing a new Local Development Plan (LDP) which will cover the period 2011 to 2026 and replace the UDP when adopted. As part of the LDP pre-deposit stage, the Council prepared and consulted on a Draft Preferred Strategy. This document identified the need for 7500 new dwellings over the LDP period and strategic policy 4 sets out how this provision will be met. The policy recognises that there are a significant number of vacant dwellings in the authority and supports bringing them back into beneficial use as they play an important role in addressing housing need including affordable housing.

Development Control - The main role of the Council's Development Control service is to consider proposals for new development through both the planning and building regulation process. As such, the service would facilitate empty homes coming back into beneficial use, but this is only as a reaction to developers proposing such works.

Notwithstanding this, both Planning and Building control have enforcement roles to enforce both the planning and building control legislation. This is, however, primarily in respect of complaints made to the council.

As for planning enforcement, the most relevant action pursued would be in respect of a complaint of an untidy property, either vacant or occupied. If it is considered that the condition of land or a building is having an adverse impact upon the appearance of the surrounding area, action would be considered under section 215 of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 (as amended). Such action would secure, for example, the repair and replacement of broken or damaged windows and rainwater goods, repairs to the roof of a property and the clearance of vegetation and waste from the front and rear garden.

With regard to building control enforcement, action against properties in general, not only empty properties, would be in respect of section 77, 78 and 79 of the Building Act 1984. This action is primarily undertaken to resolve dangerous structure issues where the public would be at risk from the premature collapse of any parts of the structure. This legislation is only enforceable where the owner of the property defaults on any action given under a court order or where the owner is not present and emergency measures have to take place.

With regard to section 79 of the Building Act 1984, these powers are quite limited and restrictive. Where the use of this section of the act is considered necessary, it is usually more expedient to pursue action under section 215 of the 1990 Act, as mentioned above, to address the site condition.

If an enforcement case is pursued in respect of an empty home under the legislation mentioned above, the Development Control Service will notify the Empty Homes Officer. The Development Control Service will also advise the property owner of the Council's Empty Homes Strategy and encourage the owner to consider bringing the property back into beneficial use in line with the Strategy.

6. RESOURCES, CORPORATE COMMITMENT AND ONGOING MONITORING

6.0 RESOURCES

The process of dealing with empty homes was reviewed prior to the development of the Local Housing Strategy (2007-12) in 2006; it concluded that the current approach was insufficient mainly because the service was reactive, not proactive, and because there was no specific budget allocated for dealing with empty homes.

Currently, no individual team or council officer is responsible for dealing with empty homes; a proactive service cannot be provided within current staffing levels. There is also no allocated budget for administering the process (see Appendix 2), tracing owners or the costs of enforcement.

In order for this strategy to be implemented, sufficient resources need to be allocated to it.

6.1 OPTIONS FOR INCREASING CAPACITY

Staff Resources – Currently there is no dedicated staff member who deals with empty homes; the process is handled by the Environmental Health (Housing) Team as one of many responsibilities. Under the current staffing levels it is only possible to provide a reactive service. A proactive service dealing with empty homes would require the capacity to liaise with council partners, RSLs and property owners.

There is a need for a dedicated member of staff to deal with empty homes. There are a number of options for providing this:

- For the council to identify the financial resources to employ a part / full time Empty Homes Officer.
- For the council to work in partnership with Bridgend County Borough Council to fund a shared Empty Homes Officer to work across Bridgend and the Vale of Glamorgan.
- To look at the possibility of funding a full time Empty Homes Officer in partnership with the council's partner RSLs; e.g. splitting the total cost of a post between Public Sector Housing, Private Sector Housing and the four RSLs.

Financial Resources – There is no dedicated budget for bringing empty homes back into use. Typically Empty Homes Strategies have been implemented in Welsh councils with a budget attached.

There is a need for financial resources to implement this strategy and ultimately bring empty homes back into use. There are a number of options for providing this:

- For the council to identify a budget to implement the strategy, with the intention of the funding being reused and reinvested after a period of time.
- For funding to be identified from various sources. However, these options are limited, e.g:
  - Renewal area funding and regeneration area funding; are limited to Barry and the Castleland ward and so would not tackle properties outside of Barry.
  - S106 funding; currently only available for the Sully ward.
  - Social Housing Grant; could be utilised across the Vale, however the funding has been fully allocated up to 2014 and so would not facilitate any properties being brought back until 2015.
- Raise a budget from enforced sales of properties where a profit can be made by the RSL purchasing and re-selling the property. Utilising the profit then to reinvest in less profitable properties. This approach may also require an initial budget in order to get started.

6.2 CORPORATE COMMITMENT

A key aim of the strategy is to develop a corporate awareness of the problems of empty homes and the contribution they can make to meeting housing need across the Vale. This objective is addressed in the action plan under aim 4.

6.3 ONGOING MONITORING AND EVALUATION

The following arrangements will be put in place to ensure the strategy and action plan are monitored and progressed:

- A nominated representative from each of the teams involved (Public Sector Housing, Environmental Health (Housing), Public Sector Housing, Council Tax, Planning, and Legal) will form a monitoring group, chaired by Public Sector Housing to monitor this strategy and action plan.
- The monitoring group will work in partnership to monitor evidence and record the successes and limitations of the strategy and continue to work towards the aims of the strategy.
- To ensure corporate ownership of strategy an annual review of the action plan will be reported to the relevant Scrutiny Committee.
